Scope and Content

These are the organizational papers and records of the Urban Appalachian Council of Cincinnati, Ohio. The dates of the documents span from 1930-2012 but predominantly fall between 1967 and 1994. The papers are divided into nine series and include documents concerning Appalachian migration to urban areas and the formation of the UAC, programming and membership records, annual reports, publications and records of the Frank Foster Library and Heritage Room, UAC Board of Trustees board meeting minutes and agendas, materials of UAC directors, papers of UAC staff members, material of UAC committees, materials concerning UAC related agencies, articles, reports and news clippings, on subjects of interest to the UAC mission and programming and about the UAC as well as photographs and audio-visual materials.

Overview

The Urban Appalachian Council (UAC) 1974-Present, was organized in Cincinnati, Ohio, to act as a regional resource and educational center for Appalachian affairs and to promote pride in cultural heritage among urban Appalachians. Working with and for Appalachian migrants, the UAC was organized to function as both an advocate and a catalyst with a fundamental commitment to the concept of cultural pluralism. Its commitment to cultural pluralism directed the UAC's work in research, advocacy, community organization, cultural affirmation and program development.

Provenance

The records of the Urban Appalachian Council, 1930-1994, were given to Berea College Special Collection & Archives by deed of gift and were received on June 11, 2010. Additional records were given to the Archives by deed of gift in January of 2013 and June of 2014.

Processing and Arrangement

Processing Notes

Below are the original processing notes for the collection; however, since 2012, additional records have been added to the collection. Relevant processing and/or arrangement changes made after 2012 are noted in the finding aid.

The records of the Urban Appalachian Council arrived in 30 oversized boxes and were delivered by Tom Wagner and Phil Obermiller. Of these boxes, 23 were organized by series and subseries and labeled with UAC numbers. The remaining boxes contained records in labeled folders; however, these records were not organized into series. Some materials, arriving in boxes falling apart due to weight, were re-housed in 9 cubic foot boxes. One box was part of a previous set of records related to Michael Maloney and was therefore added to that accession. The only material not meeting normal appraisal standards was a ledger book of indecipherable accounts and receipts; this ledger was discarded. All other materials appeared relevant and worthy of the time, effort, and attention needed to preserve, store, process, arrange, and make available for research purposes (per appraisal made on 11-12 June 2012 by College Archivist J. M. Bradley).

The UAC Records have been arranged by series and subseries as originally organized by the UAC. The UAC Records consist of a total of 100 Manuscript Boxes, encompassing 41.7 linear feet. Labeled records originally received in an unorganized manner have been incorporated into the existing arrangement of series and subseries.

Arrangement Notes

The dates of the documents span from 1930-2012 but predominantly fall between 1967 and 1994. The papers are divided into nine series. Documents concerning Appalachian migration to urban areas and the formation of the UAC, including records of the Appalachian Committee and Appalachian Identity Center, are in Series 1. Series 2 consists of documents regarding the formation of the UAC, programming and membership records, annual reports, publications and records of the Frank Foster Library and Heritage Room. Series 3 contains records of the UAC Board of Trustees including board meeting minutes and agendas. Materials of UAC directors, including director reports and correspondence, are located in Series 4. Series 5 is comprised of the reports, correspondence, and other papers of UAC staff members. Material concerning the numerous UAC committees, including work of the Research Committee, is found in Series 6. Materials contained in Series 7 concern UAC related agencies such as universities, not-for-profit organizations, federal agencies and programs, neighborhood organizations, and City of Cincinnati agencies and departments. Series 8 consists of a variety of records, including articles, reports and news clippings, on subjects of interest to the UAC mission and programming. Series 9 is comprised of newspaper clippings, articles, journals, and miscellaneous notes compiled and/or created by UAC staff. Series 10: Audio-Visual Materials, was included in the collection in July 2015.

The arrangement and description of these records was accomplished June—August 2012, by Lori Myers-Steele, Graduate Intern, East Tennessee State University, under the direction of Jaime M. Bradley, College Archivist. The collection opened for research in September 2012. Additional records were included in the collection in January 2013 and July 2015; the finding aid was updated at both these time to show the addition of records.

Historical Background

The Urban Appalachian Council was formed in February, 1974, in Cincinnati, Ohio, with the formal merging of the Appalachian Committee of the Cincinnati Human Relations Commission and the Appalachian Identity Center in the Over-the-Rhine neighborhood. Growing from a grassroots movement into an advocacy and service agency, the UAC was, and continues to be, devoted to increasing recognition of the Appalachian migrants as a minority and providing educational assistance and employment. Many founding, past, and present members of the council have been involved with various Appalachian causes beginning in the late 1950's. Many of the founding members were also associated with the Appalachian Committee, the Appalachian Identity Center, or other councils and committees such as the Council of the Southern Mountains.

Since 1974, the Urban Appalachian Council (UAC) has worked with and for Appalachian migrants and their descendants, to dispel negative stereotypes and to help Urban Appalachians participate more fully in urban community life. In its early years, the UAC supported neighborhood organization and development, conducted research in the area of Appalachian status in relation to the general population, served as an information source to the wider community, and supported emerging programs serving the needs of urban Appalachians. In its services, the UAC targeted predominantly Appalachian and low income Cincinnati neighborhoods including Camp Washington, East End, Linwood, Columbia-Tusculum, Lower Price Hill, East Price Hill, Over-the-Rhine, Northside, South Fairmount and Sedamsville-Riverside. The UAC's research contributions on the subject of urban Appalachians living in Cincinnati and other cities throughout the Midwest continue to be used in legislative advocacy, program development, and awareness training.

While experiencing leadership changes and shifts in goals, the UAC has been guided by the mission of promoting justice, equality, freedom, and a decent quality of life for urban Appalachians. As such, the UAC continues to operate a wide range of programs with a focus on community-based youth activities, education resources for schools, community-based adult education, employment readiness, neighborhood outreach, environmental education, leadership development, cultural events, and community festivals.

Throughout its history, the UAC has been guided by its Board of Trustees, Executive Directors, staff, and numerous community members. The UAC Records are a reflection of the work, accomplishments and leadership of this group including two long-term Executive Directors Michael Maloney (1974-1982) and Maureen Sullivan (1982-2010).

After advocating for, and providing services to, Appalachians for over 40 years in the Greater Cincinnati area, the UAC had to close its doors in January 2014 due to financial difficulty.
